A RROWSMITH

Mass in honor of Saint Edmund

SAINT EDMUND ARROWSMITH, born in Lancashire (northwest England) in 1585AD, was baptized "Bryan," but always used his confirmation name ("Edmund") after an uncle who trained English priests in France. His immediate family suffered greatly on account of their adherence to the True Faith. He studied for the priesthood in France, and was ordained there on 9 December 1612. He ministered to the Catholics of Lancashire and was arrested and questioned by an Anglican Bishop in 1622. Soon after his release (due to an amnesty for arrested priests) he joined the Society of Jesus circa 1624. He was betrayed in 1628 by false brethren and convicted—in Lancashire—of being a Roman Catholic priest in England. His final confession was heard by Father John Southworth (his fellow-prisoner) before he was martyred.
